

What makes art valuable

What would you do if you have 100 million dollars some are buy house or buy things that their want or useful but some of billionaire are pay large amount for paintings and why their allow to pay for paintings.

Many of billionaire has beautiful painting from auction and their buy because their really want. Art has a magic because its can link to money. A reasons why art can make money, artworks are varied and can attract people to buy it or donate and their buy it because their what to buy a real things. For example from Arne Glimcher, a renowned art dealer, said "The whole thing of art and money is ridiculous. The value of a painting at auction is not necessarily the value of a painting. It is the value of two people bidding against each other, because they really want the painting."

Art can always tell story pass from the painting and its has interactive experience of personal thoughts and feelings and then the viewer will know what does the Artis is thinking or feeling. If the painting look weird but its has a meaning it was value too some are value in spiritual and the Artis has good concept or the Artist use a good appliance to paint a pictures its can make a painting look good look beautiful and the painting will look value to buy or to owned it but it because the Artist too that make the painting look value for example Pablo Picasso, Vincent van Gogh, Leonardo da Vinci, Edvard Munch, Frida Kahlo, etc. all of these people are most popular artist and their painting it attract many billionaire want to buy it but some artist take their painting to auction because their get the money to donate for charity .

In my opinion when billionaire bought painting it reduces the cost of it because they pay for a lot of money and I think the thing that make art more valuable is the time pass for long time it make art more than just a beautiful painting. It's can tell history and story at that time like their daily life in the history like Realism art that tell the real situation of human. Also technique on the painting also tell knowledge of artist at that time about the materials. The size is matter too, some said that big painting are more expensive than small one I think because of the time that spend on work big one have more detail. and for all of this I would say that it have many reasons to make art valuable and I think it depends on the viewer that who would give a price on each art.